

MM4 60 GA ED/45 Travelscope

I had an absolutely great afternoon with the new scope. It was a very hot day, so the birding activity was minimal. It seems birds are smarter than we are; they get in out of the heat. But my persistence paid off. I came across a Green Heron on the other side of a pond.

Another birder with a 600mm lens found the bird and put me onto it. I found it very easily with the scope and then focused onto it. I was spellbound by the clarity, sharpness, and brightness of the scope. Without exaggeration, it was like looking at a photo in a magazine.

I wouldn't hesitate to recommend this scope to ANYONE who might ask me.
